

Legionella Awareness and the Management of Hot and Cold Water Systems in Healthcare Premises

On completion of the course, learners will have an understanding of Legionnaires' disease and why it is important to manage their hot and cold water systems in healthcare premises.

The course will also provide information on the current legislative requirements to enable compliance.

Course content includes:

- Waterborne Pathogens
- Legislation and Guidance
- Responsibilities
- Control Measures
- Case Study
- Specific Policies and Procedures

On completion of the course attendees should be able to:

- Understand how legionella can multiply in water systems
- Identify the relevant legislation and guidance for compliance
- Understand the various methods to control legionella in water systems
- Recognise their role and responsibilities in the control of legionella in water systems
- Understand organisational administration for water hygiene
- Identify the relevant legislation and guidance for compliance
- Understand the various methods to control waterborne pathogens in water systems
- Recognise their role and responsibilities in the control of waterborne pathogens in healthcare water systems
- Understand the importance of personal hygiene and avoiding cross contamination

Other Information

The course is accredited by City and Guilds, one of Europe's leading qualification providers. Delegates who successfully complete the course exam will receive an accredited City and Guilds Certificate.

This course can be delivered at HSL's Accredited Training Academy, at client premises or virtually.

For course dates, costs and any other information email training@hslcompliance.com or call 0845 604 6729

Accrediting Body	Locations	Virtual Option	Course Duration
City & Guilds	HSL Academy Ross-on-Wye	Yes	1 Day / 6 hours